Study Indonesian in Indonesia

The Language Center at the State University of Makassar, South Sulawesi, runs courses for the general public wanting to study Indonesian (Bahasa Indonesia) as a Foreign Language in-country.

Indonesian courses are offered both intensively and semi-intensively, and to groups or individuals. The program is communicative and flexible; using high quality written and recorded materials. The materials have been developed by a team of native speakers and experienced (non-native) Indonesian teachers. People learning Indonesian at the Language Center will be equipped to communicate effectively for social, professional and personal purposes.

What makes us different

- An opportunity to live in the city of Makassar on the island of Sulawesi, rich in culture, local delicacies and historical significance
- Balance between structured in-class and out-of-class learning
- Excursions, practicums and field research built into the courses
- Qualified bi-lingual (Indonesian and English) teachers as tutors
- Methodology shaped on classes of 1-4 language learners
- Ability to organise custom-made programs for larger groups
- 10% discount to school or university students

Why Makassar?

- A city of 1.2 million people, Makassar is a microcosm of the whole of Indonesia â€“ where people from the east and west live side by side
- Positioned by the sea, boasting exquisite sunsets
- From bustling markets to western style malls, Makassar offers both traditional and modern lifestyle experiences
- Easily accessible through a new international airport (currently flying to Kuala Lumpur), with daily flights to all the major cities in Indonesia
- Provides an abundance of fresh, local seafood
- A perfect launching pad to experience the unique culture of Torajaland
Just a short drive or flight from some of the best hiking, snorkelling and scuba-diving in the world.